

Modern World History Honors

Course Overview and Syllabus

Course Number: SS3316H

Grade level: 10

Prerequisite Courses: None

Credits: 1.0

Course Description

This yearlong honors course examines the major events and turning points of world history from the Enlightenment and the revolutions that followed, to imperialism and the World Wars, ending with a look at the modern world. Students investigate the foundational ideas that shaped the modern world in the Middle East, Africa, Europe, Asia, and the Americas, while analyzing the economic, political, and social revolutions that have transformed human history. This rigorous study of modern history examines recurring themes such as social history, government systems, and the relationship between history and world economies, allowing students to draw connections between the past and the present, across cultures, and among multiple perspectives.

Course Objectives

Throughout the course, you will meet the following goals:

- Investigate civilizations in Africa, Asia, Europe, and the Americas and explore how they have changed over time.
- Analyze technological, political, social, and economic revolutions in world history.
- Explore the conflicts between nations to present day, and analyze the challenges facing the modern world.
- Describe cultural characteristics of societies over time, including the role of women, religion, and art and literature, and investigate the effects of technological innovation on economic and social change.
- Use research skills to access, interpret, and apply information from multiple sources.

Student Expectations

This course requires the same level of commitment from you as a traditional classroom course. Students are expected to spend approximately five to seven hours per week online on:

- Interactive lessons that include a mixture of instructional videos and tasks
- Assignments in which you apply and extend learning
- Assessments, including quizzes, tests, and cumulative exams

Communication

Your teacher will communicate with you regularly through discussions, e-mail, chat, and system announcements. You will also communicate with classmates, either via online tools or face to face, as you collaborate on projects, ask and answer questions in your peer group, and develop your speaking and listening skills.

Grading Policy
